

Five Things You Can Do Right Away with Your ISACA Certification

You've passed your ISACA certification exam! What's next? Apply for your official ISACA certification. Find out how to apply for your certification after passing the exam for CISA, CISM, CRISC, CDPSE and CGEIT.

Then, explore these five things you should consider doing as soon as possible once your certification becomes official:

1 Claim your digital badge and celebrate your accomplishment on social media.

You worked hard to pass the exam, so show the achievement off with pride. Because it might inspire others! Find out how to snag your digital badge here.

2 Update your resume, LinkedIn profile and email signature.

Don't delay! Show off those impressive credentials anywhere and everywhere and benefit from the added professional credibility you've earned. More than 11,000 jobs on Indeed.com mention ISACA credentials. If you are looking for new opportunities, you are well positioned.

2

3 Let your employer know about your new certification.

Be sure your employer is aware of your new certification and discuss how it fits in your career progression.

ISACA credentials often lead to pay premiums or opportunities for advancement.

CRISC, CISM, CISA, CDPSE and CGEIT are all among top 15 on the 2023 Certification Magazine Salary Survey 75 list, with CRISC ranked No. 1 and CISM No. 3.

CISM & CISA
certifications among
TOP-15 PAYING
IT CERTIFICATIONS
of 2022 in Skillssoft IT Skills
and Salary Survey

186
COUNTRIES have ISACA
certification-holders

Join the ISACA Engage community.

With your new certification, you can now participate in certification-specific volunteer opportunities through Engage, including exam item writing, advisory groups and task forces. Or you can join topic-specific groups to get answers you need or share your expertise.

4

5 Become an ISACA member.

If you're not already an ISACA member, now's the time to join. Build your network through your local chapter, access more than 70 free CPE hours per year and get discounts ranging from conferences to your certification renewal.

For more information about our industry-leading, career-advancing certifications, visit our Certifications page.